DUCKWATER CASE IN A NEW PHASE

AN ANCIENT DIFFICULTY RECURS

HEARING ON CONTEMPT CITATION AGAINST JOSEPH C. Tognoni

The water troubles of Duckwater are again before the district court for an application by Imogene Vanover, formerly Imogene Irwin, and her husband, F. C. Vanover, for a contempt citation against J. C. Tognoni. It is charged that Tognoni willfully violated the decrees of the court, awarding the first right to the waters of Big Warm springs and Duckwater creek to the various settlers on Duckwater creek, among whom were the predecessors in interest of complainants.

The day has been occupied in hearing legal arguments upon various phases of the law covering contempt proceedings, and it promises to last for a day or more yet, unless cut off by a ruling of the court.

H. R. Cooke, who has represented the Duckwater ranchers in the various litigations, and who obtained the original decree, is attorney for the Vanovers, and the district attorney is acting as attorney for Tognoni.

SINKING TO CATCH TWO DEEP MEASURES

COAL MINE NEAR TONOPAH IS PROSPECTED ALREADY TO 428 FEET

According to General Manager H. A. Darms, the coal mine at Condale has been working full blast the last six months. The shaft is now 428 feet deep. He has had 3000 gallons of water an hour to cope with, but it is easily handled with the new 60 horsepower steam engine that he has recently installed. If the statistics of Darms are true, the larger vein should be penetrated within 60 feet and the third vein within 120 feet. These two veins should be reached early in the fall and Tonopah and Goldfield would benefit by a cheaper fuel. Judging from samples the coal is equal to that shipped in from other states.

This is the only coal mine in the state of Nevada and for the fact that Tonopah is a silver camp, investors were slow to venture into this field. A producing coal mine in this section means a great deal to the state of Nevada.

RELIEF MINE SOLD

The famous old Relief mine, with a production record estimated at three-quarters of a million, situated about three miles south of Rochester, has been purchased by John E. McGovern of Rochester and William C. Hale of San Francisco, from J. W. Kromer and J. C. Colligan. The Rochester Treasure Mining company will take charge of the development program which is proposed to be instituted.

HERMAN ZADIG IN OPTIMISTIC MOOD

EXPECTS NEW DISCOVERIES OF ORE AND INCREASE IN PRICE OF SILVER

Herman Zadig, broker and mine owner of San Francisco, who is spending several days here looking after his heavy interests, said in interview at the Mizpah:

"I arrived Sunday from Goldfield, where I spent a day inspecting properties. I was glad to hear that all differences between the majority and minority factions in the Goldfield Merger have been settled satisfactorily to all parties concerned and that hereafter developments will go on without danger of interruption on account of litigation.

"I inspected the Silver Pick and think there is a good chance to develop an ore body on the 700 level. I had a prominent engineer with me who made several trips underground to study the property. He was much interested and expressed assurance of developing ore.

"Sunday I went down in the Rescue and am more strongly impressed than ever that we have a chance to catch the downward continuation of the 950 level of the ledge we have in the workings above. The face of the drift looks quite favorable. I also went out to see the Bonanza and noticed a decided change in the formation. It looks as though we were getting near the contact.

"Drilling in the Umatilla is progressing rapidly and the latest core looks very favorable. A friend of mine, a prominent mining man, is with me. He will stay a day or two longer. He is much impressed with Tonopah and will visit several of the big mines.

"It is unfortunate that silver should remain so low, but time will show that I am right and as soon as the war is over silver will make a jump. The nations of Europe that are giving L. O. U.'s will be glad to put silver behind their paper. I look for a great revival in mining interest, particularly in silver mining, as soon as the war is over."

"The Old Lady" Is the Magnet

"Whither bound, L. D. Towns?"
"To Frisco to join my wife."
"Where are you going, Charles, this morning?"
"To San Francisco to get acquainted with my wife," replied Auditor Duchaneau of the Belmont.
"What's your destination?"
"I was asked of Charles Enquist."
"I'm on my way to the exposition partly, but mostly to see my wife."

SYLVANITE LOOKS BETTER DAY BY DAY

(Special Bonanza Correspondence)

SYLVANITE, July 12.—McKelvey, McLaughlin & Tennant's lease at Sylvanite is looking better with each day's development. The vein in the bottom of the shaft at 36 feet shows a good 12 inches in width and is apparently growing stronger. A pleasing feature is the growing values in gold. The last assay taken went $11.60 in the yellow metal and $57.73 in silver. This is a general average and shows that the values are improving right along. About five tons of ore of this grade is now on the dump.

The Frevert, Meyers & Mortimer lease, formerly the Humphries lease, is looking much better. The vein is showing strong widening tendencies and the values, as indicated by careful pinnings, are improving as well. The last assays, taken a few days ago, returned values of $36, and there has been a decided improvement in the values for the 9 to 10 inches of ore now coming in at 44-foot depth.

JUST A FAIRY TALE OF NEVADA BUT THIS IS ALLEGED TO BE TRUE

BONANZA MAN IS TOLD A YARN THAT READS LIKE MOVIE SOUNDS

Motion picture plays with weird and mysterious plots are nearly always on the market. If one is a patron of the "movies" he will undoubtedly see a remarkable resemblance to the following story. It reads like a fairy tale and the adventure seems just as mystic as the tale.

Once upon a time, about forty years ago, a lonely prospector was traveling over the desert. On nearing a water hole he met a wounded Indian. He examined the wound and found it to be a very serious one. He dressed it as well as he could and nursed the fallen brave back to health. Several weeks passed and the Indian, entirely well, wished to reward his rescuer. He took him to a nearby mountain and almost at the top he showed him a vein of almost pure gold. He told him that it was his but not to let anyone know of the find, especially the surrounding Indians. The Indian departed and the white man determined to make his camp at the foot of the mountain.

Almost a month passed. He took samples from many places where the vein was in plain sight. He determined to go back to civilization and get a trusty partner and then come back and cart in the riches. He was about to depart when he was surrounded by hostile Indians. He fought for his life, killing two, and escaped. He immediately hit the trail for San Francisco. Thirty miles from the mountain he made a drawing of the surrounding country. At San Francisco his health gave out and he was unable to go back to his discovery.

Years later we find the old man in San Francisco on his death bed. His sister is residing in Tonopah. A wire is sent to her and she immediately rushes to his side. He gives her the map, samples and general direction of the lost treasure. She said his secret would be kept and that she would gain the confidence of two worthy gentlemen and find the lode.

She returned to Tonopah and was hardly a month when two young men offered to finance the trip and they devised ways and means of reaching the desired place. The general distance is 100 miles from Tonopah in a southerly direction.

Owing to a bit of hard luck they have not succeeded in getting anywhere near the location. They were about twelve miles from Goldfield when they ran out of water. They only had twelve gallons for three people and two horses to last two days. That nearly proved to be their downfall. They returned to Goldfield, got a fresh supply of water (60 gallons) and again started ahead. The water was too much for their light wagon. They broke an axle and in this state of affairs they found a spring. Leaving the horses and two of the party there, the third caught a passing auto and took the broken party into town to be repaired. By this time they are well on the road to wealth and happiness.

VACATION SEASON RAPIDLY NEARING

BENCH AND BAR PLAN A HOLIDAY

WILL DITCH THE DOUBTFUL BALANCE OF RIGHTS AND WRONGS

The summer is advancing and the members of the bar are gladly considering a vacation. The court will probably start its long needed rest in a few days. It was scheduled to commence today, but owing to a jumble of petty hearings and the like, together with the Duckwater case, it will not be able to adjourn until later.

Judge Mark R. Averill said: "I am just as eager for the bar vacation as are the attorneys, for we have had a very steady grind and even though I love these mountains and this sky with their ever changing play of color, as I love no other place on earth, I sometimes, as the mercury crawls higher and higher in the thermometer, look out to where the sky and mountains meet, and beyond the line to where the waves are rolling up on the sands and the salt air is wafted like a tonic from some far away dispensary of nature. Yes, I am going to the coast and have a quiet little vacation with Mrs. Averill."

Miss Margaret Shields, the court stenographer, is so weary catching up with her work in anticipation of the vacation that she says she is so tired that she almost doesn't care to ever hear the music of a typewriter again. "I am first going to the coast to see the exposition, of course," she said, "and then I expect to go east to visit my brother at Lake Erie until the close of the vacation."

Hugh Brown will spend his vacation in the state of Utah. He plans to attend the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws at Salt Lake City. The conference, which will last about one week, will be held about the middle of August. Mr. Brown is one of the commissioners from Nevada and will represent the state at the meeting. Afterwards he will attend the annual session of the American Bar association, also held at Salt Lake City, which will probably cover a period of three days. Later he will return to Nevada and from Reno he will most likely go to San Francisco where the entrancing lights of the exposition will dazzle his fancies.

J. K. Chambers, who has resided in Tonopah for many years, will take a little trip to San Francisco. While there he will attend the annual meeting of the San Francisco Bar association, which will be in session some time during the month of August. He will also see the exposition and other places of interest during his stay at the fair city. He expects to be absent about three weeks.

The month of September is a very good one for entertainments and the holding of meetings. The main reason is because so many people belonging to organizations and societies are on their vacation and there will be no excuse for non-attendance. One of the societies to hold its annual "blow-out" will be the Zeta Psi, a very large and powerful organization having several chapters in Canada. Harry Atkinson is a member of this society and since this is an annual affair for all of the members from everywhere, he expects to leave here about the middle of September and stay until the early part of October. He will join his family at San Francisco and visit his numerous friends in that city.

H. R. Cooke is planning on leaving here about the first of August and after joining his family in Calaveras county he will visit the exposition for a week or two. From there he will extend his journey to Portland, Ore., where he will spend the remainder of his time. The entire trip will last about six weeks.

"DUMMY"

Webster defines the word "Dummy" as follows: "Dummy—A sham package in a shop, one that does not contain what its exterior indicates. Fictitious, or shammed; feigned."

Or, in other words, Blank Stationery, in your daily business transactions?

As applied to Business Stationery, the word "Dummy" carries with it all the odium applied by Mr. Webster. Associated with its use are the tombstones of countless business failures. It consists of a sheet of cheap paper in the shape of a bill head, a letter head, or possibly an envelope, upon which is smeared the name of a town, together with a few blank lines upon which may be scrawled the name of the firm, person or corporation who is making a slipshod attempt to do business. Or the name may even be gobbled upon the sheet by a rubber stamp.

At all events, the use of such Stationery detracts from the quality of the stock carried if any attempt is being made to give honest, sterling goods.

Its use does not tend to leave a good impression in the mind of the party receiving it.

He is apt to associate you and your goods and your business in the same category to which your stationery properly belongs.

Think it over. Really there is but a short step at times between the road to Success and the broad highway that ends at the great big city of Failure.
